What do you think are the main concerns when it comes to AI?

Cricketing Success

Fantastic Ryan, well done!

British Science Week

Science Week has returned to the Coppice - the theme this year was Connections.

Science and Food connected - we looked at things milk based. Students took cream and turned it into their own butter by connecting the casein molecules in milk. To end the session the students taste tested their own produce.

If you wish to try the tasks at home the recipes are included too.

Making butter - are you ready?

1. Pour into a jar some double cream and add a sprinkle of salt.
2. Shake until it becomes thick and stiff
3. Don't stop ... keep shaking until the cream begins to go thin again and YELLOW. Stop at this point - it should look like scrambled egg.
4. Through a piece of kitchen towel - spoon out the butter
5. Wash the butter with ICE COLD WATER and pat dry with kitchen towel
6. Pop it onto a piece of greaseproof paper and into the fridge until you've made your cheese.
7. Butter will keep for 3 days.
8. You can add flavour too - like garlic.

Making Cream Cheese - are you ready?

- Add some warm whole milk to the glass
- Add small amounts of lemon juice and swirl the mixture continually - don't stir as this breaks up the cheese.
- The milk will start to form solid white flakes - which will sink to the bottom of the glass
- Pour the mixture through the paper towel.
- Press the white solid into a firm lump and is cream cheese.
- Stir in garlic salt and parsley for flavour (only a bit though) - you could try chilli flakes, or cracked black pepper too
